

Dear FCC, A comment concerning Vitelco (Innovative Communications) opposition to Choice Communications entry into the local telephone market. The current monopoly by Innovative (a company which is far from innovative) is restrictive and unnecessarily expensive. We must wait months or in some cases, years to get a phone line. Service is almost non-existent. Try calling their phone number - busy for hours at a time. Heaven forefend that your main line goes down. You can't reach their repair "service" (call 912) from your cell phone. And it's not just a monopoly in the telephone but they own the principal newspaper, the cable "service", a local TV station as well as the phones. We NEED competition in this market. Thank you.
John Fuller